Australians Coming.
Ottawa, April 25.—Lark, Canadian commercial agent in Australia, writes under date of March 24, that upon the regular steamers is all engaged to Canada. Many Australians are coming to the Dominion to settle on land. Some have considerable capital, while others intend seeking employment on farms. In spite of the different climate and conditions, Lark thinks they are likely to make a desirable class of settlers. Some rains fell during March which were productive of good results in many sections. Though the drought is not broken, the prospects are much better than at this time last year. Farmers are now able to plow in many parts, and business is as good as could be expected under adverse circumstances. Funds have been raised to feed the hungry, and these unhappy conditions, he says, must lead to emigration.

Incoming students are requested to sign their names to Prof. Conrad, who is now permanently in residence in Regina, and if a reasonable number of applicants who may find the location of their reach will write or see Prof. Conrad, arrangements will be made to commence evening sessions.

WEDNESDAY APRIL 29TH '08

THE BRITISH PREFERENCE

The abolition of the British import duty on grain and flour has radically changed the conditions; bearing upon the British preference in Canada. Matters are now, as they were when the preference was given and the weighty reasons for a change in Canada's attitude because of Britain having refused Canada a preference on her food stuffs, do not now exist. It was certainly a serious blow to the sentiment for preferential trade in Canada, when Britain, having placed a food tax upon her own people, left Canada, in the same position as the rest of the world. It was something Canada could not understand; for as the Minister of Finance said, while Canada could not and did not ask the British people to tax their food in order that Canada might have a preference, it was a totally different matter when the British having submitted to a food tax, declined to remit a part of it as a Canadian preference.

It appears now, however, that this food tax was either merely a measure intended to meet a special condition, or it was an experiment which failed. In either case, it is removed from the realm of active politics and the reasons for the Canadian preference on British goods stand on their own merits as at first.

The abolition of the British food tax coming so soon after the announcement of the Canadian finance minister as to Canada's possible attitude should that tax be continued, would almost indicate that he had advance information as to the intention of the British Government; and knowing or believing that the tax was about to be abolished, had increased liberty to say what Canada might do in case Canada was not given a preference under it. Stated shortly, Canada's advantage in giving the British preference is that not only have the prices on cottons and woollens which enter so largely into the general consumption of the people been reduced, but the combine amongst Canadian mills to unduly raise the price, which unquestionably would have occurred, has been prevented. The effect has not only been on the amount on cottons and woollens imported, but on the amount manufactured in Canada as well.

Few people have any idea what amount of these goods are used in the country, or what amount of taxation is paid on them. Last year the imports and woollens into Canada reached $17,000,000; the greater part of which came from Britain, and the whole of which was lessened in price to the consumer by the amount of the preference. Not only so, but the output of Canadian mills was influenced to the same degree, as already said not only by the amount of the preference but also by the prevention of the high prices, which a combine would otherwise have forced.

Cottons and woollens are the wear of the people at large. The family of small income will wear out as much value of these in a year, as will the family of the millionaire. It follows therefore, that whatever reduces the cost of cottons and woollens is especially a relief of taxation and cost of living to the great masses of the people; just as an increase in the tax on these articles, and consequently in their cost, lays a specially heavy burden upon the same class of the people. It will be observed that it is the manufacturers of cottons and woollens who cry out loudest for the abolition of the preference and for higher tariff generally. Just in proportion as they want the preference abolished, the interests of the people at large are involved in its maintenance.

Winnipeg Markets

Commercial, April 25th.
Wheat—During the past week our local market has practically started into new life owing to the opening of navigation at Fort William and Port Arthur. There has been a good demand for spot wheat, principally of the highest grades and latterly spot and delivery as far ahead as the first half May have commanded the same prices. Since Monday the value of No 1 hard wheat stood around 75-1 to 77c, except on Wednesday, 76-1-2 was the best. At the close of business yesterday prices were 1 hard, 77c; 1 northern, 75-1-2; 2 northern, 73-1-4; 3 northern, 70-1-4c; and No 3 wheat, 66c, spot, April or first half May delivery. For 1st May delivery, 1 hard, 76-3-4c; 1 northern, 74c; 2 northern, 73c; 3 northern, 70c; and No 4 wheat, 65-3-4c; all in store Fort William or Port Arthur.

OATS—There has not been much oats offering this week and the market is steady. Farmers are now busy seeding which keeps back deliveries. Offerings have been mostly from elevators. Demand is steady. We quote prices firmer as follows: No 1 white in carlots on track are worth 31-1-2 to 32-1-2c per bushel; No 2 white, 29-1-2 to 30-1-2c, and feed grades, 28c.
HAULEY—The market is almost nominal, as there is no barley offering about 36 to 37c per bushel is the value for feed grades at country points.

Women's Rain Coats

All Styles and Cloths for both Ladies and Misses. Besides affording protection from the rain, they are dressy in a large degree, and in their dressiness lies the secret of their great popularity this year. They make good sunshiny day coats. Most of them are heavy enough to protect you from the cold as well as against the rain. When the waterproofing was first tried on rain coats, only smooth cloths like Covert and Venetian were treated, but this year we have mixed English Novelty cloth as well. The chemicals hold the threads tightly together, change their fibre and take off the fuzz so that they can resist water like an umbrella. Our assortment is large in colors, styles and sizes, and we guarantee every garment.

Men's Cravenette Coats

Made in the Raglanette style of solid waterproof material in different shades worn this season. See the special $10.00 line.

BOYS' RAINCOATS—A special lot to clear at $2.75.

Umbrellas

Kinds you can afford to love, but you won't wish to—they're too good and pretty. The poorest one in the assortment is worth $1.75. Built with paragon frames, covered with piece dyed taffeta silk, like wisp, close rolling, sturdy, natural wood handles; just three hundred and fifty of them.

Kenneth Macdonald Flats

The Finest Alluvial Soil on Earth.

On each Lot enough may be grown to support a family.
The property adjoins Little's brick yard on the South, the Experimental Farm on the North, and overlooks the Saskatchewan on the East.

The opposite bank of the river, rising in natural terraces from the water's edge to an average height of 150 feet, beautifully wooded, affords A PANORAMA OF HARMONY AND DELIGHT.

Edmonton has passed the experimental stage, and will possess in a few years a metropolitan population.

The Railway Question is settled The Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern are assured quantities.

A fact not generally known substantiates that Edmonton will be a terminus for some years, is that the carrying capacity of the Canadian Pacific exceeds the Oriental and British Columbian trades combined, and the three great roads mentioned will halt before pushing on to the Pacific, thereby making our city of vastly more importance than it would otherwise have been.

Much of the timber is primeval. The principal streets will be boulevarded, and ancient growth furnish overshade.

Maps and schedules of prices open for inspection at W. H. Hooper Company's Office on May 4, 1903.

History of the German Immigration Into the Edmonton District

Written expressly for the Bulletin by Alfred von Hammerstein.

The returns of the immigration lists for the past fiscal year, show an influx of over 2,400 Germans into this district, a number far in excess of those of any other nationality excepting only the American.

The causes of this large immigration of these two nationalities or rather the ground ideas which bring these new arrivals, are, in my opinion, quite different. The German has left his parents, relations and friends, far, far behind. He has traversed two continents and has crossed the vast ocean and when he bade good-by to those he loved he probably cast the last look in this life upon them. An immense distance lies between him and his old associates and home and except for an occasional letter he has completely stepped out of their lives and, save for his memory, he is to all intents dead, to those he left behind.

What little property he perhaps owned, he had to dispose of in order to pay the heavy expense of bringing himself and his family this long, long distance. The German is not by nature a wanderer, he rather clings to his home and he comes here, glad to have arrived at last and brings little wealth except his physical strength and the determination to make this country his new home; a home for himself and a new fatherland for his children and to stick to it, fair times or dark.

With the American immigration at large, it is a different matter, at least as far as my observation goes. By inclination and character the born American, especially the western American, is restless and loves to speculate. He hardly ever becomes naturalized into another country, but wherever he chances to come and to stay, he rather expects that the other country should be naturalized into the United States and the quicker the better. For precedents see New Mexico, California, Texas and Cuba. The ideal of the American as a unit is to make money and make it quickly in any way possible to get rich. To achieve this end during and after settlement is necessary; both characteristics combined have often achieved tremendous results to the benefit and progress of the land and the prosperity of the American nation. Sometimes though it works the other way.

The large holdings of land and town real estate in this district, purchased not for personal and immediate use, but to turn over later on, some time in the future, at a profit, show the presence of the American speculator. Even among the agricultural population there are many that have sold out and pulled up their stakes in several parts of the Union, drifted from state to state and now come to us, attracted by our present prosperity and the prospects of far greater yet in the future, as soon as the railroads will enable us to open properly our already settled and our as yet idle farming and ranching lands, the lands near the mountains and that great fertile Peace River and Grand Prairie country.

While, when once communications will enable energy and capital to tap the as yet completely neglected and untapped treasures, which nature has stored in the north, industries will give an enormous home consumption for our farm products and which will produce wealth and riches which will astound the world. Gold, silver, lead, copper, in fact all precious and commercial minerals are found and their locations are known today, also salt, iron, coal, sulphur, natural gas and coal oil. This is not mere writer's fancy, but personal knowledge and I would gladly give special information to whom it might concern. So all chances are that those that come into this country with a view of speculation on our grand future, will not be disappointed.

The American immigrants living close to our lines and having the advantage of the same mother tongue has already heard or read of these vast resources and comes to us fairly well informed. Should he through any circumstances desire to return to his former home, he has only a comparatively short distance to reach there again. Not so the German, who has left his fatherland many thousands of miles away. He is, with very few or hardly any exceptions, a tiller of the soil and when he comes here, he is determined to stay here. He does not come with the idea of making money, but rather to make a new home for himself and his children and children's children. He dismisses the thought of ever leaving this his new country or returning to the old. He comes to live and die here.

To Be Continued.

Situation in Somaliland.

London, April 24. — The British cruisers at Aden sailed for Berber last night. The troopship Hardinge has been ordered to proceed forthwith to Berber to take reinforcements to Somaliland.

An unofficial despatch from Aden described the British disaster as an ambush, and represents the Mullah's army as being 10,000 strong. Colonel Plunkett's men with the exception of the officers and two orderlies, were all killed. Yaco and Somalis. Colonel Plunkett had an intimate acquaintance with the country and its inhabitants, having been in Somaliland since the operations began in 1901. He trained the Yaco and Somalis who formed the King's African Rifles, and brought them to a high state of efficiency. The Yaco, and Somalis, like most North Africans, are fine fighters and the manner in which they acquitted themselves at Gumburra was what was to have been expected from their own grit and Col. Plunkett's discipline. The fight occurred in Italian Somaliland, on a great distance from the Abyssinian border. An Abyssinian force, of from 5,000 to 10,000 men to which two British officers are attached, lately occupied a position southwest of the scene of operations to cut off the possible retreat of the Mullah, but they were not supposed to be co-operating actively with the British expedition. General Manning has advanced from Ofbia and the abandonment of that place as a base, precludes his retiring outward if retreat is necessary. He must, therefore, fight his way north, or the British co-operating column, whose base is at Berber, and its advanced base, must force its way to support him, in case of need. General Manning's column now numbers about 2,500 men. Nothing has been heard of it since it advanced to assist Colonel Cotton, who is likely in a tight position.

BEAVER LAKE EAST

At a special meeting of the ratepayers of the Beaver Lake school district, held on the 18th, Mr. James A. Stewart was elected trustee to fill the vacancy on the school board caused by Mr. Verdu's departure for the other side of the line. This is probably the latest spring on record here. No seeding has been done yet, and there is little prospect of much being done before May. Lots of old and new snow in the way of the plow, etc., and it will take some time to disappear. Geese and ducks arrived a while since, but they are not numerous. No waves as yet to our knowledge. A snow-storm struck this locality on the night of the 9th and continued for two days. The estimates of the snowfall vary from fourteen inches to two feet. The wind was from the north-east at first but later on veered round to the north-west. The drifts were very deep, and travelling was difficult for a few days, especially for wagons. New comers were disgusted in most cases, though many took matters philosophically. We were somewhat surprised to find no mention of the storm in the Semi-weekly Bulletin of the 13th, as travellers reported it as bad at Edmonton as it was here. In fact the storm seems to have been general in Northern Alberta. On the 22nd a variation came in the form of a north-east thunderstorm, which changed to soft snow on the 23rd. These things are disagreeable and depressing no doubt, but there is no use getting the blues over them. We will probably have a first-class season as a whole, with lots of delightful weather to make up for the contrary now. Duncan Stewart, of Renfrew, Ont., is here on a visit to his brother, Jas. A. Stewart.

Alex. McAllister, has sold his homestead to Mrs. R. G. King. The price, we understand, was $1,000. Mr. McAllister is going into stockraising. Divine service was held at Mr. Fane's on Sunday, April 19th, by Rev. Atkinson of the Beaver Lake Anglican mission.
